Three charged in Rye High School hazing

Three students at Rye High School in Westchester are facing criminal charges for alleged hazing, as part of a ritual known as "Freshman Friday." Sean Pinson and Tristan Scragg, 17, and Max Meyerson, 16, are accused of driving three eighth-graders to a wooded area and beating them with a paddle. The teens were charged with felony assault, since investigators say the boys were covered in bruises. ● METRO/CB Asleep at the wheel?

► Federal govt report blames driver fatigue in horrific Bronx bus crash ► Investigators say driver Ophadell Williams had hardly any sleep in the three days before he got behind the wheel ► Severe sleep deprivation may be even more dangerous than driving drunk

► A support pole tore the roof off the tour bus entirely. The bus was bound for Chinatown.

WRITE TO METRO:
LETTERS@METRO.US

The driver of a Chinatown tour bus that toppled over last March, killing 15, hadn't slept for three days and should never have been behind the wheel, found the National Transportation Safety Board in a new report about the horrific crash.

The federal agency announced yesterday that the probable cause of the 2011 accident was driver Ophadell Williams' failure to control the bus, which they attributed to fatigue.

Ophadell Williams had nearly no sleep in the three days leading up to the March 12, 2011 crash, officials reported. Williams was unable to properly steer the bus away from the road's edge and a deadly support pole sliced through the vehicle, ripping the roof off.

The pole tore through the entire bus, from front to back. The bus toppled over on I-95 in the Bronx. Fifteen of the passengers aboard died, and 17 were injured. Williams also received minor injuries in the crash.

Investigators asked Williams to detail the three days leading up to the crash, and he recalled how he arrived home at around 11 a.m. and had to wake up again at 4 p.m. for another night's drive.

He claimed he would sleep for a few hours in the bus seats while passengers gambled, he said.

But investigators noted that his cell phone and rental car were in use in the daytime hours, according to the report, leading them to suspect that he had been out and not sleeping.

The investigation concluded that Williams "was impaired by fatigue" at the time of the crash, according to the report. They did not say he was asleep.

"His lack of evasive braking or corrective steering action as the bus drifted off the roadway was consistent with fatigue-induced performance impairment," the report added.

The bus, traveling at 78 miles per hour in a 50 mile per hour zone, careened to the right off Interstate 95 around 5:30 a.m., driving over the rumble strips on the right shoulder edge and crossing the 10-foot-wide shoulder, according to the report.

The bus was on its way back from the Mohegan Sun Casino in Connecticut.

Company shut down

The bus company, World Wide Travel Bus, was shut down after the crash, but many employees were transferred to another company, Great Escapes, according to The Associated Press. That tour bus company still operates.

The report also chastised World Wide for not using an onboard safety monitoring system to track Williams' driving, which investigators said would have detected his "unsafe behavior."

And the NTSB recommended that motor companies adopt a fatigue management program, based on the North American Fatigue Management Program, which recommends eight hours of uninterrupted sleep for drivers. ● METRO/AB

Similar to

drunken driving

Several studies show that the little amount of sleep Williams had would have rendered him even more impaired than had he driven while intoxicated.

► During one study, people who were sleep deprived for 24 hours straight had the cognitive equivalent of being legally drunk, The New York Times reported.

► Another study in the British journal Occupational and Environmental Medicine found that drivers who had been awake for 17 to 19 hours performed worse than those with a blood alcohol level of .05 percent, about equal to downing two alcoholic drinks.

► Response speeds were up to 50 percent slower for people going on 17 hours without sleep, according to that same study.

► Airplane pilots are required to receive a minimum 10-hour rest period, including an opportunity for eight hours of uninterrupted sleep, pointed out Dr. Marlynn Wei, a Manhattan psychiatrist and sleep expert.

► "(Sleep) is particularly important for people in transportation, just for public safety reasons," Wei said. "For a driver, it would be reaction time, decision-making."

► Without regular sleep for several days, she said, "You would first be very fatigued, so your reaction time might be extended."

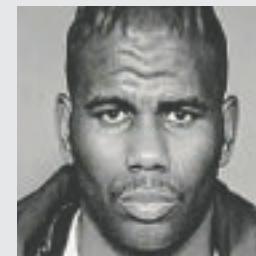

► "Decisions might not be what you would normally make if you were fully rested," she continued. "Your senses aren't impacted, but your reaction time might be delayed."

● METRO/AB

Where is Williams now?

Williams pleaded not guilty to manslaughter and criminally negligent homicide charges, and is in Rikers on a $250,000 bail. His next court date is in September, according to the Bronx district attorney's office.

Williams had not turned in driver's logs, according to the AP, and had been fired twice. At the time of the accident, his license had been suspended 18 times. The bus company hired him even though he had a suspended license at the time, investigators found. ● METRO/AB

Life in prison for murder of cleaning lady

An elevator operator who was convicted of savagely killing a cleaning woman in a Financial District office building in 2009 was sentenced to up to life in prison yesterday.

On the evening of July 7, 2009, Joseph Pabon, 28, was working as a freight elevator operator at an office building at 2 Rector St., according to Manhattan District Attorney Cyrus Vance.

Rodriguez, 46, worked as a member of the cleaning staff at the same building. That night, after all the office workers had gone home, Pabon followed Rodriguez to the eighth floor of the building, after asking other cleaning staff where she was. There, he attacked her and suffocated her with industrial tape, said the DA.

Pabon then used the freight elevator to transport her body to the 12th floor of the building, where he hid her body in an air duct. Someone made the gruesome discovery four days later.

In April, a jury found Pabon guilty of murdering the mother of three.

According to Vance, Pabon's DNA was found under the woman's fingernails, indicating there was a struggle as she fought for her life.

"I hope that the verdict and today's sentencing brings a small measure of peace to the victim's family," said Vance.

Pabon has consistently denied the crime; it's unclear what triggered the attack.

JFK employee charged with stealing $20,000

QUEENS. A baggage cart employee who worked at JFK Airport was charged yesterday with allegedly stealing $20,000 in cash from a passenger's computer bag.

Anis Rehman said that on May 2 he accidentally left his computer case, which contained $20,000, on a baggage cart in an empty parking space in the blue parking lot of the airport. Rehman said he then headed to the terminal for his flight.

7 He faces up to seven years in prison if found guilty.

A short time later Rajendranauth Ramsahai, 58, was captured on surveillance video walking up to the cart, searching through the bag, and then taking it away, the Queens district attorney charges. He later admitted he removed $600 from the case.

New Yorkers give $3.5M to Obama

NEW YORK. President Barack Obama's campaign stops in New York City on Monday night, accompanied by former President Bill Clinton, raked in $3.5 million for Obama's November reelection bid.

Although surrounded by supporters at events in the Big Apple, the president has struggled to rekindle the enthusiasm of the Democratic base that swept him to victory last time.

He acknowledged that he faces a difficult path to reelection and warned that millions in Republican super political action committee fundraising would fuel negative ads aimed at feeding "all those fears and anxieties" about the economy. ● REUTERS

Closing time for Mickey Mantle's

After 24 years of delighting baseball fans, Mickey Mantle's Restaurant on Central Park South is closing.

The owner of the once iconic restaurant announced yesterday they will shutter the space after being open since 1988.

"It's a very sad and difficult decision," owner Christopher Villano said. "Having 'Mickey Mantle' on the awning was an honor we took very seriously. Mantle was one of the great names in New York's rich sports history."

The restaurant was named after the famous Yankees center fielder, and, before he died in 1995, Mantle was often spotted inside, where he would eat, drink and provide free autographs for customers.

"We went there for my brother's elementary school graduation," recalled Brooklynite Greg Hanlon, 31, who grew up in the city. "He wasn't there, but my grandmother went back weeks later and waited outside for Mickey Mantle just so she could get autographs for us."

The eatery is located next to the St. Mortiz Hotel, now the Ritz-Carlton, where Mantle lived while he was in New York City.

The restaurant was decorated with sports memorabilia and a mural of old Yankees stadium.

Fans had rallied to raise $1 million to save the restaurant earlier this year, but it wasn't enough to keep it going.

Villano said increasing food prices and shifting city regulations, along with landlord issues, created "a situation that is no longer manageable."

Jail time for renegade JFK livery driver

JFK. A livery cab driver who trapped a tourist family of four during a wild police chase in February was sentenced to jail yesterday.

According to officials, Bhopinder Singh, 38, illegally offered the family, who had just landed from Panama, a ride into the city. But livery car drivers, unlike taxis, are not allowed to pick up street hails.

As soon as the family got into his car, police stopped Singh. That's when he locked the Town Car's doors, put his vehicle in reverse, and sped away from the terminal, the terrified family in the back.

The Town Car hit a guardrail, and Singh fled from the vehicle on foot. After a struggle, he was subdued by police. ● METRO/CB

Metro's Monica Weymouth shares her take on the world of gossip @monicaatmetro monica.weymouth@metro.us

Tweeting under the influence, for real

Gwyneth Paltrow has spent the past couple days dealing with the fallout over her now infamous tweet from a Jay-Z and Kanye West concert in France. (Your day doesn't include petty Twitter arguments? Fascinating. We'll catch you up: She tweeted a photo of herself dancing onstage with the rappers and a caption that read "Nas in paris for real.")

Most people weren't buying Paltrow's initial argument that the caption was a harmless play on a song title from the Jay-Z/West album "Watch the Throne" and not an N-word violation — probably because she runs a "lifestyle" blog and starred in "Shakespeare in Love."

But now The-Dream has jumped in to defend the actress, claiming that he took the photo from her phone and also sent the offending Tweet.

"Fyi Sorry for the Confu I typed Nias in paris for real from Gwens Phone my bad I was Fkd up please excuse it! We were lit!" the rapper posted.

Today's cover magic prize goes to the good people over at Vanity Fair who, instead of trying to Photo-shop a little will to live into Kristen Stewart's eyes, just plopped a fluffy Pomeranian on her lap.

Inside, Stewart laments losing her privacy after "Twilight." "You can Google my name and one of the first things that comes up is images of me sitting on my front porch smoking a pipe. It was taken the day the movie came out. I was no one. I was a kid. I had just turned 18," she says. "The next day it was like I was a delinquent slimy idiot. Big deal. But that changed my daily life instantly. I didn't go out in my underwear anymore."

Clarkson: 'Idol' a 'horrible' experience

Kelly Clarkson will play a mentoring role on the upcoming singing competition "Duets," and she hopes that she's learned from the mistakes that "American Idol" made when she was a contestant. Judas got his 30 silver pieces; Tony nom Josh Young just wants one

"I'm not that Jewish," Josh Young states as he bites into banh tap — shrimp crackers with pork. The actor who plays Judas in "Jesus Christ Superstar" met with us during his only available downtime, between a matinee and evening show, at a Vietnamese restaurant in Midtown. The rest of his week has been stuffed with promotional appearances, performances and rehearsal for the Tony Awards. The 31-year-old has been acting since he was 12 and playing Judas with this production since it originated at the Stratford Shakespeare Festival in 2011. But this is both his Broadway debut and his first Tony nomination: Best Featured Actor in a Musical.

We're talking about what he brought to Judas from his own background, as opposed to what he learned for the part. "I read the New Testament, which I'd never read before," he admits. "Other blanks I had to fill in, I just made up — because you can't find anything about [the life of Judas]. I said, well, he was studying to be a rabbi. He was studying the Torah, which says there was only one God. So if there's a guy saying he's God, it's like: 'Look, you're my friend, but if you're going to go around saying this ... I'm going to have a problem with that."

Young is excited as he talks about his success, though just six months ago, he might have been more blasé. "I was ready to hit the ground running and be supertriumphant," he explains. "I had all the confidence in the world." But an ill-timed bout of bronchitis took him off the stage during previews, and he nearly missed his shot to qualify for the Tonys. "I guess that took the pressure off a little," he says. "I had to accept that I was really ill, and everyone was going to see me that way. The only other option I had was to not go on."

Perhaps thanks to those ups and downs, he teeters between modesty and mettle: "I'm not a typical choice," Young states about the role. "I know the other guys who've played [Judas] on Broadway in the past, and I'm very different from them. ... I would have to say I'm outside the bad-boy, rock 'n' roll box." But he's quick to add, "I can do whatever anybody else can." We tell him we're going to print that, but the rising star won't back down now. He just smiles and replies, "Good!"

Facebook will disappear by 2020, says analyst

Facebook's sliding stock price has one hedge fund manager predicting a dismal decade ahead for the social network.

"In five to eight years, they are going to disappear in the way that Yahoo has disappeared," Ironfire Capital founder Eric Jackson told the CNBC show Squawk on the Street on Monday.

"Yahoo is still making money, it's still profitable, still has 13,000 employees working for it, but it's 10 percent of the value that it was at the height of 2000," Jackson added. "For all intents and purposes, it's disappeared."

So how exactly does Jackson see Facebook's power eroding by decade's end? He says it will be the continued emergence of the mobile Web — and Facebook's struggle to adapt to that paradigm shift.

"I think those who are dominant in their prior generation are really going to have a hard time moving into this newer generation," he said.

"Facebook can buy a bunch of mobile companies, but they are still a big, fat website, and that's different from a mobile app."

Facebook bought the popular mobile photo-sharing app Instagram for $1 billion in April. Still, the company has acknowledged mobile as a potential stumbling block for sustained growth.

In its required initial pre-IPO disclosure of 35 "risk factors" released February, the company admitted that as mobile use of Facebook continues to expand, its ad-free mobile platform will become more problematic.

Welcome to bridal boot camp

► Metro's style editor turns to personal trainer Terri Walsh to get in shape quick for her big day ► She ends up falling in love with fitness

After nearly a year of preparing for my wedding, it hit me: The one thing I hadn't checked off my to-do list was getting toned for the big day. Enter Terri Walsh. The veteran trainer — she was the first creative director of programming at Crunch Fitness — developed her own workout routine, A.R.T. Method (Active Resistance Training), during her two decades of fitness experience. For the past three years, she has helped people get in shape for important events — be it a wedding, college reunion or photo shoot.

Getting to Walsh's sixth-floor, walk-up studio is an exercise in dedication alone. Once my panting subsides, Walsh gives me a fitness assessment. She takes my measurements, evaluates my body fat, discusses my goals (flat stomach like Gisele — duh), hands me her DVD to practice techniques at home and introduces me to the six women working out today.

The intimate class size instantly relieves some of my gym anxieties — and is part of the A.R.T. appeal. Among weights, blocks and exercise mats, you'll find basil plants growing on window ledges. Phoenix, Walsh's adorably happy pitbull rescue, often makes visits. And class chatter includes where a gal can find the best blowout in town — my kind of place. A self-professed "house head," Walsh curates a playlist before each grueling workout, which consists of sequences involving weights, planks, lunges, push-ups, crunches and squats.

When the going gets tough

When the burn of your 40th leg lift is too much to bear and you're considering lowering down, Walsh will yell: "You didn't climb up six flights of ugly stairs to hang out" or "Your pictures are forever!"

"She's got a great sense of humor and such good energy," says Kelly Rosen, 29, who first signed up for boot camp before her wedding in 2010. "No matter how exhausted you are, she'll get you to kick it into high gear." Marisa Sannicandro joined A.R.T in 2012 to "look as good as I could in my wedding dress." She admits that she "hated going to the gym and never did," but says, "this class is so fun." After seeing her waistline shrink from 28 inches to 23 in eight weeks, the 32-year-old is a convert. "It's only an hour, and you feel so much better after," she says.

And those aren't the only perks. "What I love about Terri is when she's teaching, she makes you understand what you're doing," says Rosen, who lost 11.5 inches during her boot camp. "It was like my body transformed. You feel strong. She's very empowering."

More than numbers

Every few weeks, Walsh measures her students to make sure they're on track. But for this trainer, the greatest sign of success is when a student finally nails a move.

"My favorite part is watching someone go from uncoordinated to coordinated," she says. "I like the person in the back row. I like the person that's trying to hide from me. Everyone thinks you have to come out of the box understanding what to do, and that's not the case at all."

Teaching people how to be physically capable may be even more important than results. "Of course I'm going to make your butt tighter, of course I'm going to give you the abs you want, of course your arms are going to look good," Walsh says. "But what keeps people showing up is that there's never-ending learning and discovery when you actually practice what I teach you to do."

The favorite part for us students? Even better than how great our jeans look now is the walk down those stairs after each class. You'll feel so badass — bring on the final dress fitting!

You must eat

- "I don't believe in diets," Walsh says. She requires boot campers to eat three protein-packed meals and send her a daily food diary.
- "Before Terri, I ate no breakfast — and for dinner, [I ate] whatever junk food I could grab on the way home. She taught me how to eat healthfully," says Sannicandro.

Bring it home

POM Wonderful's health benefits

Location of study: U.S.

Results: Chief Administrative Law Judge D. Michael Chappell has ratified the Federal Trade Commission's complaint that POM Wonderful LLC, the makers of POM 100% Pomegranate Juice and POMx supplements, falsely advertised that their products could work wonders for heart disease, prostate cancer and erectile dysfunction.

Significance: In a 335-page decision, the judge ruled that POM did not have enough evidence to claim the aforementioned benefits by drinking 8 ounces of POM daily or taking a POMx pill or one teaspoon of POMx liquid.

Renaming high-fructose corn syrup

Location of study: U.S.

Results: The FDA rejected the Corn Refiners Association petition to change high-fructose corn syrup to "corn sugar" on nutritional labels.

Significance: High-fructose corn syrup is chemically-treated cornstarch and has come under fire for being a non-natural sweetener. A 2007 Consumer Reports National Survey conducted found that 83 percent of consumers did not believe that ingredients like high-fructose corn syrup should be used in products labeled as "natural."

► Hands-only CPR can drastically increase the chance of survival for someone in cardiac arrest ► Why it works ► The song that can help you keep the beat

If you saw a teen or adult suddenly collapse in front of you, would you know how to perform CPR? No? That's OK — there are only two steps you need to remember: 1) Call 911; 2) Push hard and fast in the center of the chest to the beat of the Bee Gees' song "Stayin' Alive."

"By doing that, you can actually double or triple the chance of survival," says Dr. Alson S. Inaba, a pediatric emergency medicine physician in Honolulu, Hawaii, and the doctor who discovered that the rate of compressions correctly aligns with the beat of the disco hit.

For potential rescuers who may be nervous about mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, that's good news — you don't need to help the victim breathe in order to be a lifesaver.

"An adult who suddenly arrests in front of you probably arrested because of a rhythm problem called ventricular fibrillation, so when you have that, you don't really need to be breathing for them — you just need to keep their heart and brain perfused [supplied with blood]," Dr. Inaba says. "Keep doing [compressions] until someone comes with an

"With all the high-tech technology that [we] have to help these people," Dr. Inaba adds, "really what's gonna make a difference is the lay rescuer, the person who sees someone drop in front of them, the rescuer who has enough courage, compassion and caring in their heart to say 'I can do this.'"

Greedy corporations are anti-American

RE: "WE MUST PAY RICH OR THEY'LL LEAVE US!": Corporations who send American jobs abroad for love of money over country are traitors! They can go bankrupt, for all I care. Once global wages inflate closer to ours (and they're rapidly doing so!), those same companies will be begging to come back. Screw 'em! Sleep in the bed you made yourselves. Since when did profit mean more than country?! This is why Republicans are trying to destroy unions. The living wage unions represent should be the norm, not the $4/hour slave wages of China and India. Who could live on that? For this treason, the GOP should go extinct. They're evil puppets working hard for billionaires looking to further line their pockets at the expense of the American worker. Is there class warfare today? You bet! But hard-working folks didn't start it, corporate raiders did. The question now becomes: Will my neighbor stand with me, trying to make a better life for my family? Or will he stand with greedy, profiteering billionaires hell-bent on destroying the way of life for an entire generation in the name of vulture capitalism? I know where Joey Whitmoyer stands. What about you?

Bishops want to have it both ways

RE: "MIXED BAG ON THE CATHOLIC CHURCH": The Catholic Church is in no way suing over religious freedom.

The churches themselves are not being held to the new health care law, it is Catholic business that is being held to it. If the Catholic Church wants to do business then it must abide by the same rules as everyone else; if it wants to stick with religion, then it can be exempt, but it must abide by religious dogma and give away its services for free as charity. It can't have both.

DOUGLAS BROWN, VIA E-MAIL

Logic compels arguments and comparisons to be on the same issue. The Church's religious belief that birth control is sin is totally unrelated to taxpayer subsidy of religious education. To compare the two is no more valid than to compare Mozart's Requiem to the molecular composition of moon rocks.

GEORGE FORSYTHE, VIA E-MAIL

Fathers need to support their babies

RE: "WHOSE FAULT IS THIS OVERLOAD OF RESPONSIBILITIES?": Two people are involved in the creation of a human being; thus, the responsibility for the care of that child falls upon both parents. The reason there are so many single mothers struggling to survive is those men with whom they have had relations avoid the responsibility of caring for their offspring.

CHER HEARN, VIA E-MAIL

How do women vote for Republicans?!

The Republican party has voted overwhelmingly against the paycheck fairness act and against the Lilly Ledbetter Act that gives women recourse if they are paid less than a man for the same job. Why are there Republican women? How do you say to yourself, "I deserve to earn less when I do the same work because I was born female."

Horoscope

II Gemini May 21-June 20. You should guard against an inclination to be too possessive or too demanding of your loved ones. This type of behavior usually has a tendency to push others away.

☿ Cancer June 21-July 22. Neither you nor your mate should make any major decision without first discussing it with the other. If either of you take action independently, it will only cause problems.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. Someone you dislike for no particular reason does not feel the same way about you. Instead of holding fast to this bias, give the person the benefit of the doubt.

♍ Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. If you give in to urges to take a risk on an exciting someone, there's a good chance you could back the wrong horse.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. The possibilities for the kind of independent operation you like are very slim, mostly because you're likely to allow others to make demands on your time.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. Don't permit a past infraction by another to totally distort your thinking about him or her. Be on guard, but allow this person a second chance — just in case it was one rare moment of indiscretion.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. A friend of yours who has yet to return something that he or she borrowed will put the bite on you for another loan. Before you accede, establish some strict ground rules.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19. Striving to make your mark in the world is admirable, but not if it's done at the expense of others. Know the difference between climbing and clawing your way up to the top.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. Be careful about offering any advice to others, even if asked. If what you say is misunderstood or misinterpreted, you could be blamed for the asking party's failure.

♓ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. There is a negative situation that you've had ample opportunity to change but that you haven't done anything about. Unfortunately, this opens the door for another to walk in and alter it to his or her liking.

♈ Aries March 21-April 19. If an alliance that you established in the past didn't work out, think twice before getting involved once again. Ask: Was it the team or the objective that was at fault?

♉ Taurus April 20-May 20. Just because a co-worker isn't in accord with your way of doing things does not mean you can't succeed. Don't allow a disagreement between you to shut the production down.

All-Star voting

MLB released the first vote totals for July's All-Star Game and both local teams have just one leader.

David Wright leads all third basemen in the National League, while Derek Jeter leads all shortstops in the American League.

OF Curtis Granderson is a distant second to Josh Hamilton, but that would secure a spot in the starting lineup as well. Mark Teixeira and Robinson Cano are second at their positions.

► Brodeur

Brodeur least of concerns for DeBoer

Devils head coach Pete DeBoer absolved goalie Martin Brodeur of blame even though he has allowed eight goals on 78 shots in the series.

Brodeur has a .897 save percentage and 2.66 goals against average through the three games. By comparison, Kings goalie Jonathan Quick has a .972 save percentage and 0.66 goals against average while limiting the Devils to two goals on 72 shots.

"Marty Brodeur bouncing back is the least of my concerns," DeBoer said. "[Our] desperation level is high. You're in the Stanley Cup final. I don't think there's a way of heightening the desperation level. We're down 3-0. We just have to stick with it." ● METRO/DG

IS THIS THE END?

- Devils' season on the brink, trailing 0-3 to Kings in Stanley Cup final
- Only three teams have ever come back ► DeBoer keeps positive outlook

The scenario facing the Devils is brutally simple — win Game 4 of the Stanley Cup final and keep their season alive.

The Devils trail the Kings in the best-of-seven series three games to none. Should the Devils lose Game 4 tonight at Staples Center, they will author an unwelcome piece of franchise history — its first sweep in a Stanley Cup playoff series.

"Try to get this thing taken back to New Jersey [for Game 5]," Devils captain Zach Parise said during his media availability yesterday. "That's all we can do right now. That's all we can think about."

Contemplating the alternative can only lead to dejection.

The only team in NHL history to win the Stanley Cup after falling behind 0-3 in a series was the 1942 Toronto Maple Leafs. Only three teams have ever won a playoff series after falling behind 0-3 in a series: the aforementioned Leafs, the 1975 New York Islanders in the quarterfinals and the 2010 Philadelphia Flyers in the Eastern Conference semifinals.

"We haven't talked about the statistics of the situation we're in. We feel we don't belong in the hole we're in right now based on the way we've played, but we are," Devils head coach Pete DeBoer said when he met with reporters yesterday. "[We've] got to stick with it and win one game. That's where it starts."

The Eastern Conference champions have not been able to consistently gain the offensive zone, to say nothing about implementing their forecheck in the same manner that they did against Florida, Philadelphia and the Rangers.

"I grew up in Ontario. Heard a lot of stories about the Leafs," DeBoer said through laughs when asked about the 1942 Leafs. "I think '42 is a little far back for anything I remember."

sports@metro.us

Just bear down?

Pete DeBoer is still talking like a coach that expects his offense to break through at any moment this series.

► "We've got to bear down a little bit more. We've got to get some more traffic," DeBoer said. "We've got to find a way. [Jonathan Quick has] played very well. He's played very well — for me — early in games. We've never been able to grab momentum."

 Equal Housing Lender. Sovereign Bank, N.A. is a Member FDIC and a wholly owned subsidiary of Banco Santander, S.A. © 2012 Sovereign Bank, N.A. | Sovereign and Santander, its logo and FlexLock are registered trademarks of Sovereign Bank, N.A. and Banco Santander, S.A. respectively, or their affiliates or subsidiaries in the United States and other countries. *To get the FlexLock Home Equity Line of Credit fixed introductory APR and variable "go to" APR shown, you must have or open a Sovereign checking account and use automatic payment from that account. To get the variable "go to" APR shown, you must obtain a credit line of $100,000-$750,000. The introductory APR will apply only during the first 12 billing cycles after your FlexLock line is opened. Thereafter, the APR, including the APR on any existing balance, will convert to the applicable variable "go to" APR. The "go to" APR on FlexLock lines may vary monthly based on the latest U.S. Prime Rate as published in The Wall Street Journal as of the first business day of the month, plus a margin of 1.24% (now 4.49% APR). Maximum APR is 18%. Minimum APR is 3.24%. After the introductory APR expires, the interest rate will increase by 0.25% if automatic payment is discontinued. FlexLock lines with lower credit limits are available. Contact us for information about applicable rates and other terms. All APRs assume that your total mortgage loans, including your FlexLock line, do not exceed 80% of the value of your 1-4 family owner-occupied residential property in NY. Other rates and terms apply to co-ops. There is a $450 termination fee if you close the line within 36 months. An annual fee, if any, will be charged during the Draw Period. The amount of any annual fee will vary based on the type of deposit account relationship you have with Sovereign at the time the fee is assessed. The annual fee will be waived as long as you maintain a Sovereign Premier deposit account relationship. The annual fee will be $25 as long as you maintain a Sovereign Preferred deposit account relationship. Otherwise, the annual fee will be $50. Mortgage recording tax will be paid by Sovereign, but must be reimbursed if the line is closed within 36 months. There is a $50 fixed rate lock fee for each lock-in request. Property insurance is, and flood insurance may be, required. FlexLock account use is subject to the terms of the Sovereign Home Equity Line of Credit Agreement, including terms that permit lines to be suspended, reduced or terminated in certain circumstances. Maximum line amount is $750,000. If your home is on the market for sale at the time of application, you are not eligible for this offer. If your property is held in trust, this offer is not applicable, as a non-refundable fee of $175 will be charged for consideration of trust properties. Offer not available if you have received an introductory rate on a FlexLock line within 12 months of your application date. APRs and other terms accurate as of 6/1/12 and may change thereafter. Applications subject to approval. Check with your tax advisor. SOVN1440NY 6/12

Yanks host familiar face in Matsui

For the third straight season, Hideki Matsui is returning to Yankee Stadium in a different uniform.

In 2010, it was with the Angels and his return happened to be the same day the Yankees received the championship rings that Matsui's six RBIs in Game 6 helped them attain.

Last year it was with the Athletics and this year it's in the light blue of the Tampa Bay Rays, whom he joined last week.

"It's the third year now and every year it's been a different uniform, so I'm pretty used to it," Matsui said through an interpreter before last night's game.

Matsui was in the visiting dugout because there was not much need for a 37-year-old designated hitters. The Rays were the only team to offer Matsui a contract.

"I'm not getting any

younger, so given the circumstances, I'm not surprised," Matsui said. "That's something that can't be helped. This is a world where you really have to prove yourself. So I accept the situation."

Matsui is wearing No. 35 since his old No. 55 belongs to starting pitcher Matt Moore.

"The three is for my mentor and former manager and also [former Yankees pitcher Mike] Mussina used to wear that number," he said. "So hopefully I can end my career with the kind of numbers [Mussina put up]." ● METRO/LF

Bullpen relief coming

► Robertson begins throwing program with bullpen session ► Likely to pitch in eighth inning upon return

Yankees reliever David Robertson spent part of yesterday throwing 35 pitches in a bullpen session with the next step facing live hitters.

If that goes well, he will likely appear in a minor league rehab game.

In terms of returning Robertson to the closer role, it sounded like manager Joe Girardi is leaning towards retaining Rafael Soriano in the role.

"We're probably going to put Robby in some situations in the eighth inning when he comes back and then we'll just go from there," Girardi said. "Soriano has done a very good job, whatever we've asked him to do. We feel that they're interchangeable. Sori has the experience down there."

Soriano got his first save opportunity May 10 and had ► Robertson was 1-for-2 in save opportunities this season.

converted all seven opportunities with a 1.29 ERA prior to last night's game.

"Let's just get Robby back and see how he's throwing the baseball, but I expect that we'll try to insert him into the eighth inning to start out," Girardi said. "I would love to be able to do that, eighth inning and a lead."

Yankees draft HS pitcher

The Yankees have drafted only two high school pitchers who went on to appear in pinstripes. They hope Ty Hensley will be the third.

Hensley was the Yankees' top pick (No. 30 overall) in Monday's draft.

"We're excited to get a guy with such a high ceiling," amateur scouting director Damon Oppenheimer said in a statement. "He has the ideal body for a high school pitcher as well as power stuff and has the ability to be a high-end starter."

Hensley, from Edmond, Okla., was 10-0 with a 1.52 ERA in 11 games this year.

Of the 11 first-round picks spent on a high school pitcher only Phil Hughes and Bill Burbach have made the majors.

West Coast meets

► Up-and-coming interior designer Kyle Schuneman's tips for maximizing small spaces ► Before and after

Kyle Schuneman wants to help you think inside the box — that is, the miniscule one-bedroom that commands half of your monthly income. Earlier this month, Hautelook.com asked the 26-year-old interior designer (named a “Tastemaker” by Los Angeles Magazine) to make over three typically small East Village apartments in his signature California style. The challenge, he said, was to conjure a coastal theme in a small space “without making it feel like a seafood restaurant.”

Schuneman, whose book “The First Apartment Book: Cool Design for Small Spaces” publishes this August, chatted with us about how to invite some much-needed West Coast ease into our often-cramped East Coast quarters.

How do you define West Coast style?
I think it's casual, I think it's approachable. I think if you look at it and it's effortless, and it doesn't feel like it's designed by anyone specific and it just feels organic, then that's California for you.

So the size constraints of the typical New York apartment aren't a problem?
Not at all. California is full of an eclectic mix; I think it's important to embrace that and find your own style. It's all about feeling — if people stop by, they can come in and it's warm and inviting. It doesn't feel uptight.

Can West Coasters take any tips from East Coasters?
You guys do crazy things with your storage; I've learned a lot about using every nook and cranny. You have such beautiful architecture to pull from, but you don't have the luxury of space. So you have a very structured approach to design, and I think that it can be really mixed well with California style at the same time.

What inspired you to focus on small spaces?
I grew up in a 1,200-square-foot apartment with four people; my parents turned the master bedroom into another bedroom and turned the closet into my sister's room. ... I think you guys have constraints, but they're creative constraints. I think that having a box to work in is sometimes easier than having an unlimited space. Think from an architect's point of view, start with function and build from there.

East Village

► Floor-to-ceiling window treatments and painted moldings bring up the eye.

Kyle's tips for small spaces:

► "Everything has to function at least twice." Choose furniture that also functions as storage. "Think of your rug as your fifth wall." Aggressive wall colors and patterns can make a small space feel smaller. Keep your walls neutral and go wild with your floor coverings. "Bring the eye up." What your apartment lacks in depth, it can usually make up for in height. Highlight decorative moldings and opt for floor-to-ceiling window treatments.

Grow up, not out

► A vertical pallet garden makes the most of tiny city back yards ► Directions for how to get yours started

Outdoor space is hard to come by in a city, but you don't need a sprawling lawn to spruce up your home with plants and flowers. Instead of gardening out, garden up.

With vertical gardening, you plant on a wooden pallet or metal panel, then attach it to a wall or prop it up against a deck or balcony railing. "If you can wake up in the morning and look out at what was previously a brick wall and is now full of green living plants, it

Keeping the bugs at bay

Incorporate mountain mint and marigolds into your pallet. Mountain mint wards off mosquitoes, and the scent of marigolds deters other bugs.

changes your whole outlook on the day," says Curt Alexander, owner of Urban Jungle, a vertical landscaping company and garden center in Philadelphia.

The trick, he says, is to arrange the plants so they all get enough light, which means making sure bigger ones don't throw a shadow on the little guys.

Most types of plants, flowers, veggies and herbs will work, says David Prendergast of Greensgrow, an urban farm in Philadelphia. The farm, open seven days a week, has examples on display for aspiring vertical gardeners.

► An old pallet is just a few steps away from becoming a creative planter.

Step by step

How to make your own pallet vertical garden:

1. Get a pallet. "You can Dumpster dive, find one on the street, go to any [store]," says Prendergast. "They're readily available." Chemically treated pallets, which are painted a color, shouldn't be used for vegetables.

2. Attach landscape fabric to the back of the pallet by stapling it all along the edges, putting the staples an inch or two apart.
3. Snake a soaker hose (made of permeable rubber, so water will seep through and get distributed evenly) along the back of the pallet.

4. Lay the pallet down and fill the spaces with soil, two-thirds of the way full.
5. Plant your plants. About 32 plants should fill the pallet.
6. Leave the pallet flat for two weeks to give the plants time to "get established," Prendergast says. Make sure it's near where you want it to wind up, because it will be heavy.

7. Stand it up and attach it to a wall or balcony railing.

Introducing AURA at 240 South Harrison Street, an upscale urban apartment building, that offers its residents a much healthier and more holistic lifestyle. It breaks the mold of regimented dwellings and brilliantly provides the core characteristics missing in today's residential developments : Fresh Air, Bright Light, Outdoor Greens capes to relax and stunning New York views to look at. AURA aims to stand out aesthetically as a foreground building, not just another background, anchoring the urban hodgepodge around it and making the area look more coherent...
